FOREWORD

As you glance through this book in years to come, it is hoped that you may recall some of the pleasant memories and familiar faces we have shared together.

The sound of happy voices, the spirit of good sports, the molding of ideals, skills and aspirations - all blended into our high school experience.

We have tried to make our pictures tell the story of 1953 as unconventional as well as the conventional side of school life. We hope that each student will feel that this is HIS annual and will keep it, and cherish it.

Dedication

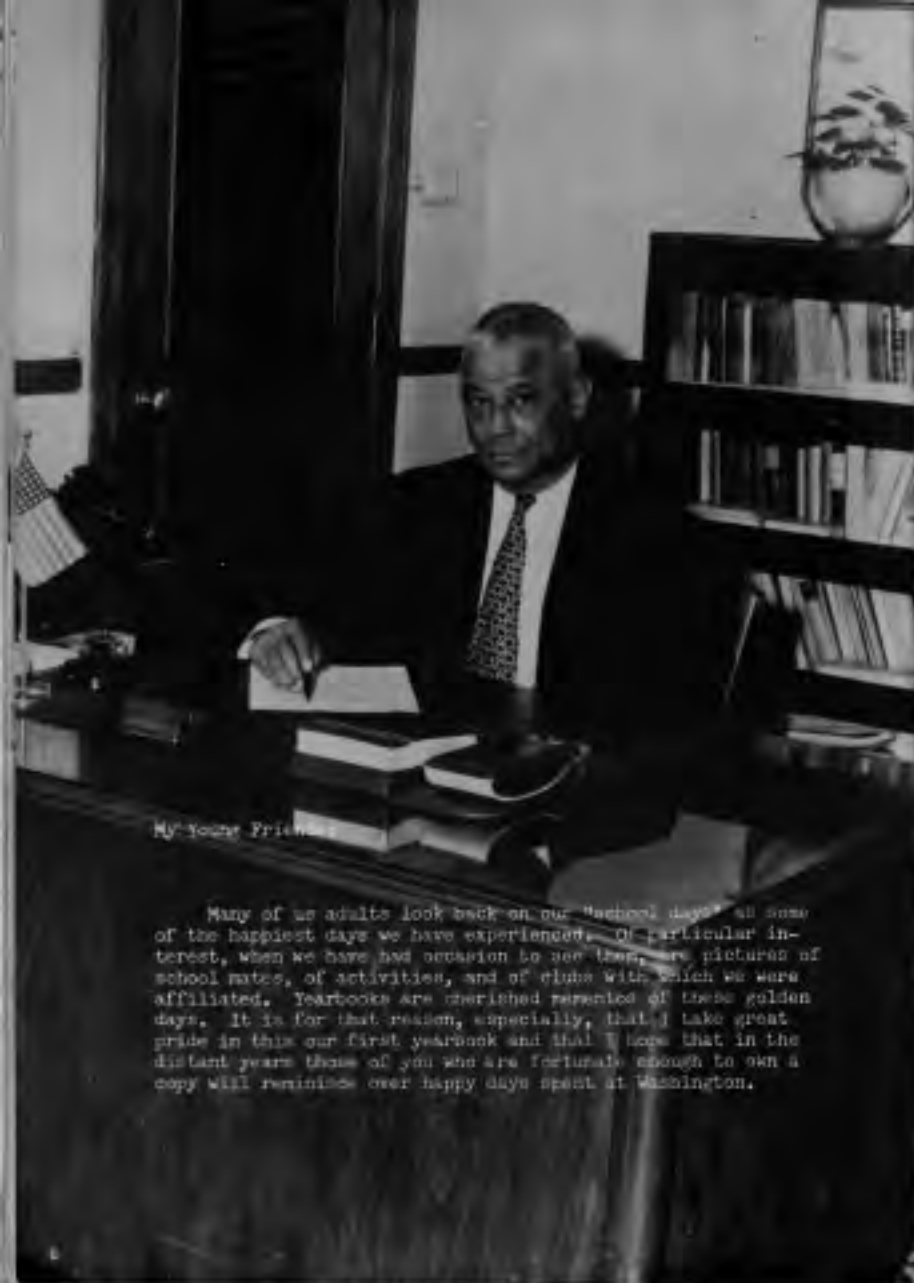

To the hundreds of pupils and their parents, to the friends in the community at large, to the devoted and conscientious members of our school family, and to the past and present members of the school board and the department of superintendence who have worked untiringly to make Washington the school that it is this yearbook of 1953 is gratefully dedicated,

The Staff

Faculty

My Young Friends

Many of us adults look back on our "school days" as some of the happiest days we have experienced. Of particular interest, when we have had occasion to see them, are pictures of school mates, of activities, and of clubs with which we were affiliated. Yearbooks are cherished reminders of these golden days. It is for that reason, especially, that I take great pride in this our first yearbook and that I hope that in the distant years those of you who are fortunate enough to own a copy will reminisce over happy days spent at Washington.

ONCE

ONCE upon a time, there was a young man and a young woman. They were very beautiful and very kind. They lived in a small house in a small town. They were very happy and very content.
