Booker T. Washington Public High School and
THE COMMUNITY THAT IT SERVES

Booker T. Washington Public High School opened its doors to the community of New Orleans during the fall term of 1942. Since that particular term, the school has made significant contributions to the needs of the boys and girls of this community through (1) the program of studies, (2) school activities, (3) community activities, and (4) graduates in the community.

And here begins the story - Booker T. Washington and the Community It Serves.

Seniors

Our school days at Washington have been short but happy, and we are sincerely grateful to our teachers, schoolmates, and principal for making them so. We will often turn the pages of this yearbook with longing, thinking of the good old days at Washington and wishing that they could return.

Casuals

The program of studies at Washington High School consists of the courses of studies available to secondary school pupils. These experiences assist pupils in meeting the common, as well as the educational, needs of youth.

A REMINDER

(The personalities we are developing in school today will continue to develop in the world of work and the community affairs tomorrow. The habits and attitudes we form toward people and public problems carry over to influence our actions later on).

PRESENTING

HOMEROOM & CLASSES

One of the most significant organizations in the entire school activity program, is the homeroom group. The homeroom organization provides experiences in democratic living and teacher-pupil guidance. The functions of the homeroom are many. They are: orientation of students, guidance in morals and manners, guidance in school activities, maintaining attendance records, and serving as the link between pupil and administration.

Thus, Booker T. Washington High School provides training for worthy community citizenship. This is a service to the community.

The Social Studies program offers courses, activities, and units of instruction which help meet the social needs of secondary school pupils and prepares them to meet problems of adult living. Students study problems confronting citizens of the local community, the nation and the world.

The Guidance program gives systematic aid to pupils in solving their problems and in making adjustments to the various community situations. It coordinates the work of the school and community, and correlates the work of the school with the needs of the individual after he leaves school.

Booker T. Washington High School students receive valuable experiences through participation in school organizations.

The student council provides experiences in student government activities. Such experiences should prove beneficial in developing worthy community citizens.

The cheering squad develops favorable attitudes toward loyalty and support in fair team play. Good communities need citizens who are loyal to worthy causes.

The Cooperative Club of Booker T. Washington High School is a parent-teacher organization that provides school-home planning for community development.

The annual school operetta contributes to the aesthetic programs in the community. (An intelligent citizen appreciates the culture and fine arts presented in good musical programs.)

Thus, the school serves the citizens in the community.

1. Chlorophyll a (Chl a) is the primary photosynthetic pigment in most plants and algae. It is a green pigment that absorbs light energy in the blue and red regions of the visible spectrum. Chl a is essential for the light-dependent reactions of photosynthesis, where it converts light energy into chemical energy in the form of ATP and NADPH.
