FOREWORD

A person is the special masterpiece of God's creation. He comes into the world a helpless bundle of potentialities, to be molded by the forces of heredity and environment into a unique personality.

The purpose of Catholic education is to mold mature Christians. It aims to produce men and women who are prepared to witness for Christ; adults who can blend into the community of mankind and yet retain their individual identity. Each, like a prism, must reflect Christ to the world in a personal way.

Let this 1966 Notre Damian represent molding for the future. Let it inspire our readers to appreciate the treasure of Catholic education. Let it strengthen their confidence in the philosophy of life that sets our course and guides us through straits of secularism toward the peak of Christian maturity.

DEDICATION

We are proud to dedicate the '66 Notre Damian to one who has earned our love and respect during the past four years.

Sister Mary Lucy has been more than a disciplinarian, more than just a principal handling our academic affairs. She has been our friend, our counselor and guide. Our high school days have been enriched by her leadership and her constant efforts to set our steps toward our eternal destiny.

We are grateful for Sister's total dedication to a formidable task, for her unflagging belief in us, and for the ideals and goals which she has challenged us to strive for during our four years at Notre Dame.

Most Rev. Charles P. Greco, Bishop of Alexandria

Msgr. H. Clinton Teacle

Dear Students:

At the close of another school year I should like to take the opportunity again of thanking you for all the excellent work which makes Notre Dame High School so outstanding. Your co-operation with your teachers, both the sisters and lay people, has been wonderful.

Personally I should like to thank you for your efforts in making the Mission of Openness and the Teachers' Institute such great successes.

Best good wishes go particularly to the graduating seniors, but to all the students as well, that your continued scholastic efforts will bring you happiness and justified awards.

May God bless you always!

Sincerely,

H. C. Teacle
Msgr. H. C. Teacle
Diocesan Superintendent of Schools

As part of the school's guidance program this year, ministers from various religious sects were invited to speak to the student body on the history and doctrine of their respective churches. The series of lectures was initiated to foster ecumenism and mutual understanding.

During the past two years, Notre Dame has won recognition for its impressive choir throughout the Diocese of Alexandria. Under the able direction of the talented Mr. Lloyd Brownlee, the choir sang at the Mission of Openness at the Civic Theater in September and again at the Teachers' Institute in February. One evening of each month, choir members cast aside their books and social life to entertain the patients at the Veterans' Hospital. They also brightened up with their caroling, what would otherwise have been a lonely Christmas for many veterans and inmates of the Homes for the Aged.

FOOTBALL

The 1965 season was long and hard for the Bloodhounds. Unflagging efforts often went unrewarded, hopes were dashed, but the team still compiled a 4-4-1 record. Considering that they went the whole season without their hard-running fullback, Anderson Marshall, and that quarterback Robert Clyde Deal was injured in the second game, this record reflects determination and spirit.

Despite the handicap of a weak pass defense and the ill-luck that dogged their heels, Mr. Bradford's squad had their great moments, such as the 47-0 victory over St. Matthew of Melrose midway through the season, and a smashing win over Union High on Homecoming Night. Moreover, Notre Dame placed two men, Arsdale Harris and Sherman Lockheart, on the All-City team, while Kerry Mullone and Gene Ross made the All-State team--a noteworthy record in the jaws of failure.

THE NOTRE DAME CONCERT BAND

1965-'66 was a successful year for the Band. They made a smooth adjustment to a brilliant young director, Joseph Miller, graduate of Grambling College, and started the year with a breezy marching season. Loyal as ever to the Bloodhounds, they were in the bleachers at every game to rally the team. Their half-time performances, characterized by neat footwork and rousing music, brought rounds of applause from spectators.

Most of the concert season was devoted to strenuous practice for District and State Rallies. The culminating event was the State Final on Easter Monday where they narrowly missed becoming State Champs. They did rate superior and several members had the honor of being chosen to play on the All-State Band. Despite a heavy practice schedule the band found time to entertain students, parents, and faculty at several functions during the year, and finished the season with a super Spring Concert at the Civic Theater on May 8.
