Donaldsonville, Louisiana

To bring out the best in young hearts and minds, to stimulate them to explore ideals and ideas, requires inspired teaching. And this is where America's educational triumph lies, for truly inspired teaching can come only where the teacher is free to speak and see and say the truth as he finds it.

—Leroy Collins, Governor of Florida

Dear Patrons and School Board Officials:

At the opening of the 1959-60 school session, we moved into our new school facilities which were made available through the joint efforts of taxpayers and the School Board.

It is indeed gratifying and encouraging to know that our citizens are willing to meet and accept the demands of present-day living by providing better educational opportunities. We are now in a position to improve our quality of learning and teaching because we have more of the basic things fundamental to a sound educational program. However, we must agree that the true quality of a school program is determined primarily by the caliber of its faculty and students. To achieve the stability for which we yearn in our children, we must first achieve that stability within ourselves, our patrons, and the citizens of this community.

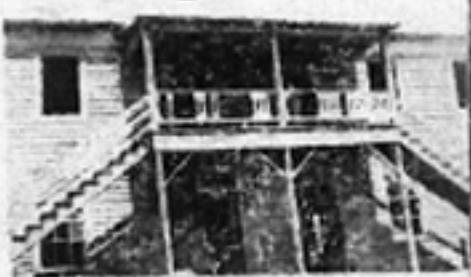

We have no doubts that our students will be more informed than in previous years. They must become more sensitive to the need of developing self-discipline and in accepting the responsibilities of citizenship. We must study the past to learn what we can use for the future and to profit from the mistakes of others. In the years ahead, a person who fails to take advantage of the educational opportunities now available will be a threat to the security of all.

Our graduating class consists of 24 boys and 27 girls. The mothers and fathers of these students rightly deserve commendation for having the insight and courage to see the real need of a high school education. We hope each will face life with this attitude: "to seek out a course of reason that avoids both dumb submission and blind revolt".

We ask God's blessings for each one of you.

Very truly yours,
E. C. LAND and STAFF
